Welcome to Splice Festival - London's dedicated audio visual performing arts festival. We're very happy to return for our second edition from the 26th–28th May at multi-arts venues Rich Mix, Red Gallery and Kamio.

Splice Festival forms the UK branch of Creative Europe's AV Node Network, a large scale project which partners 13 art and technology festivals across 12 European countries to promote and support the work of audiovisual artists.

At its core the festival programme explores the overlapping fields of audiovisual art and culture through the curation of diverse live performances that range from narrative to non-narrative, pop to more experimental, from expanded cinema and experimental film to VJ and DJ sets, live cinema to AV remixing and performance art. We celebrate a broad range of creative practices and technical approaches, from work that is more gallery based to artists that are more at home manipulating a dance floor.

We are excited by the collision of different disciplines and the possibilities of new work in digital theatre, projection mapping, visual music, generative software, creative coding and experimental music. We programme work that exploits both old and new technology in engaging ways and our educational programme features a range of workshops, talks, panel discussions and networking events.

Splice is about joining together as a community of artists and sharing what we do in order to inspire new work and to elevate our ideas and practice as a whole. We hope you enjoy this year's festival, have a great weekend and please keep an eye out for our open calls for future editions.
